MOORE STEPHENS

Daniela Costin is an audit associate at Moore Stephens KSC. Prior to joining Moore Stephens, she has worked in accountancy field for 1.5 years (commerce and transport). She choose to work in audit because she thinks, working in audit department for a firm like Moore Stephens gives you access to some of the most senior people at some of the biggest organisations in business. She also believes that nowadays business is highly correlated with financial and accountancy principles and by being a financial auditor you can help business stakeholders to find out whether organisation's accounts show "a true and fair view" of its financial activity.

Q: Tell us about your experience with Moore Stephens KSC?

A: After having worked with Moore Stephens for over a year, I can say this that, Moore Stephens manages to see the uniqueness of each employee and gives them space to think free, act creative and learn by being exposed to situations out of comfort zone. Moore Stephens gives you all the resources you need to do your job well. The amount of training you get is incredible, and seniors always oversee what you're doing and guide you where necessary.

Q: Big important lessons you learnt at Moore Stephens KSC?

A: The most valuable lesson that I learnt at Moore Stephens is that "Power is gained by sharing knowledge, not hoarding it". In audit profession, you work primarily in teams, so developing a rapport and sharing knowledge with each other is essential and beneficial. I also love working for Moore Stephens because of its dedicated workforce, dynamic and exciting work environment along with opportunities for professional growth and advancement.
